

Map and Directions

By Foot

Visitors are advised that if they are taking the riverwalk from the east, there is a wide footpath from Southwark Bridge to Shakespeare's Globe.

If you are taking the riverwalk from the west, there is a wide even footpath, although this narrows nearer Shakespeare's Globe and can get very crowded in summer as it passes the Millennium Bridge and the Tate Modern. A ramp descends to Shakespeare's Globe.

By Car and Taxi

Where possible, visitors are advised to arrive by public transport or by taxi.

There is an NCP car park on Upper Thames Street on the north side of Southwark Bridge. Please note that the car park closes at 7pm on Saturdays and Sundays. Parking is very limited around the Globe itself.

Limited parking is possible on New Globe Walk and the surrounding area on display of an orange disabled badge.

Black cabs may be found on Southwark Bridge (a three minute walk, up a steep set of stairs) and at the taxi rank to the west of Tate Modern all year round. During the theatre season, there is a regular supply of cabs outside the main foyer on New Globe Walk.

On departure from Shakespeare's Globe, visitors can make use of a free direct telephone to a local mini-cab service on the right hand side, outside the Front of House office, opposite the box office.
